On November 15, 2023, during the roundtable discussion on "Negative impact of environmental disasters on agriculture and rural population" held in Tashkent, implemented by the Ministry of Economy and Finance of the Republic of Uzbekistan and UNDP and the Islamic Development Bank and "Smart rural settlement" in the competition "Smart rural planning" within the framework of the joint project "Sustainable development of rural areas" financed by the International Development Fund of OPEC Umida Asatullayeva, PhD student of Mirzo Ulugbek Samarkand State University of Architecture and Construction (PhD) won the first place and was awarded with valuable prizes.

A large-scale symposium of international students was held at the Samarkand Institute of Economy and Service.

This symposium literally became a place for innovative projects, business and creativity. The symposium helped introduce and engage students with the modern business environment of New Uzbekistan, allowed them to communicate with successful representatives of the business community, and share advanced knowledge and practical experience.

More than 55 leading local, as well as near and far foreign universities, in particular Samarkand State University, Taraz Innovation and Humanities University (Kazakhstan), Samarkand State University of Architecture and Construction, Jizzakh State Pedagogical University, Tashkent State University of Economics, Representatives of Qatar University, Akdeniz University (Turkey), Nakhchivan State University (Azerbaijan), International University of Tourism and Hospitality (Kazakhstan), Azerbaijan State Pedagogical University (Azerbaijan) and Baku Eurasian University (Azerbaijan) participated.

At the symposium, opinions were exchanged with experts on economic reforms and the use of favorable conditions for business activities. At the opening ceremony of the international symposium, the Chairman of the Silk Road Research Academy, Dr. Azamat Akbarov, Consul General of the Republic of Kazakhstan in Samarkand Baurzhan Dosmanbetov, Rector of SamSACU Dr. Chidem Turkyilmaz participated with his lectures.

At the students' symposium, the speeches of the leaders of large companies, the scientific reports of Hanna Landers from the USA and Shakhnoza Asrorova, HR director of SAG, aroused special interest.

At the event, a total of about 250 thematic lectures of students of 55 higher educational institutions conducting business research in the fields of technology, engineering, economics, pedagogy, domestic, foreign and international tourism, education and medicine were heard. Ten of them received the "Best Student Work" special award. Participants submitted their reports in offline and online formats.

The organizers say that the joint event was organized in order to directly contribute to attracting talented and active students to the business environment.

The main task of the symposium is to support the establishment of a close dialogue between all participants of the local market - young people and entrepreneurs - in order to search for new innovations to increase the efficiency of the entire education.
